

Telophase Corporation Announces Award of the Secretary of the Navy Council of Review Boards' (SECNAVCORB) Knowledge Management Portal

Arlington, VA – August 1, 2008

Telophase Corporation, a leading 8(a) systems integrator for the federal government, announced today that it was awarded the development and implementation of the Secretary of the Navy Council of Review Boards' (SECNAVCORB) Knowledge Management Portal through the SBA's 8(a) Program.

The objectives of the task to gather requirements and incorporate business rules into designing and developing an enterprise web portal for the SECNAVCORB. Telophase's support will include the following: Project plan, organization and management; gather business requirements; design and architect the system that will meet the requirements as well as ensure that future requirements will be addressed; design and implement data warehouse and business intelligence architecture; test and deploy; and spearhead training.

It is the vision of the Director of SECNAVCORB to build a system that will provide a portal solution. It is best described as: A modular, integrated, web based system to receive, process, manage, and track cases related to the referral of service personnel to the Disability Evaluation System (DES), applications for combat related special compensation (CRSC) benefits, applications for changes to awarded confinement (i.e., clemency or parole), applications for changes to military records, discharges, medical records, legal issues, and records of trial.

"Telophase is very excited to have an opportunity to work with CORB again. Our Analysis Phase was viewed very positively by the customer. With our understanding of the missions and business processes of the individual boards, we feel that our institutional knowledge of CORB, as a collective organization, will help significantly for this phase and in the future", said Firoze Ahmed, Vice President, Business Development.
